

Short story

Change Yourself and not The World

Long ago, people happily lived under the rule of a king. The people of the kingdom were very happy as they had a very prosperous life with abundance of wealth and no misfortunes. The king decided to go on a travel to visit places of historical importance and pilgrim centres at distant places. He decided to travel by foot to interact with his people and accompany them. People of distant places were so happy to have a conversation with their king and they were proud that their king was so kind with a good heart!

After several weeks, he returned to the palace. He was quite happy that he visited many pilgrim centres and could see his fellow people leading a propitious life. However, he had regret.

He had intolerable pain in his feet as it was his first trip by foot to longer distance. He complained to his ministers that the roads weren't comfortable and were very stony. He could not tolerate the pain as he walked all the way through the rough path.

He said he was very much worried about the people who used to walk along those roads as it would be painful for them too!

He made an order to cover the road of the whole country with leather so that people might feel comfortable, immediately. The king thought that he had to change this for the betterment and happiness of the people. His ministers were stunned to hear his order as it would destroy the life of thousands of cows to get the sufficient quantity of leather and it would cost a huge amount of money also.

A wise man from the ministry came to the king and said that he had another idea. The king asked - what was his alternative idea. The minister told, "Why do you want to kill the holy animal cow to cover the road with leather? Rather, you can just have a piece of leather cut in appropriate shape to cover your feet?"

The king was very much surprised by his suggestion and applauded the minister. He ordered for a pair of leather shoes for him and requested the countrymen to wear shoes. Many of us criticize the world for many things. We curse and blame the things in our surroundings and never understand that we need a change in us. Changes are inevitable in the world, and the changes should be from us. We cannot or should not force others to make a change.

Japanese shot dead in Bangladesh, ISIS claims responsibility

Agency
Dhaka, Oct. 4: A 66-year-old Japanese man, known for philanthropic work, was today shot dead by the Islamic State militants in Bangladesh, the second foreigner to be gunned down in a week after an Italian aid worker was killed in a near-identical attack by the dreaded outfit.

Hosi Koniyo, who was headed to an agriculture farm on the outskirts of northern Rangpur city in a rickshaw, was shot thrice in the chest, shoulder and hand by the yet-identified assassins. "It appears to be a target killing as the assailants in masks shot him thrice. The Japanese gentleman died instantly," officer-in-charge of the local police station Rezaul Karim said.

He said doctors declared him brought dead and body was taken to a state-run hospital in Rangpur. "Koniyo was alone in the rickshaw. They wore masks. As he reached the scene (they) shot him in the chest, shoulder and hand and then immediately fled the scene on a motorbike," said an eyewitness.

A frequent visitor to Bangladesh, Koniyo had been in Rangpur for the past six months and was familiar in the neighbourhood because of his philanthropic work. He had set up the farm, where he visited daily by a rickshaw, with help of a local businessman to grow grass for cattle.

Police detained the businessman, along with the rickshaw puller, Koniyo's landlord and another resident of the area, for questioning. The Islamic State militant group claimed the killing on Twitter, the SITE Intelligence Group — a US monitoring organisation — said. The Japanese national's murder came five days after 50-year-old Italian aid worker Cesare Tavella was killed when motorbike-borne terrorists shot him dead in Dhaka's diplomatic Gulshan area. Islamic State group claimed responsibility for the fatal attack on Tavella. But Bangladesh government then downplayed the claim, describing it as an "isolated incident". Security officials, either, have not ruled out that the IS could be using "local sympathisers" to carry out such attacks.

Alternative area for paying homage to martyrs at airport

PTI
New Delhi, Oct. 4: Civil Aviation Ministry has approved a Defence Ministry proposal for construction of a "Shradhanjali Sthal" at Delhi Airport for paying homage to martyred soldiers at an alternative site after objections were raised regarding the suitability of the existing spot.

Objections had been raised about the present location where homage is paid at Delhi Airport to soldiers who lay down their lives in the line of duty as it is located in the cargo area.

Minister of State for Information and Broadcasting Rajyavardhan Rathore, a retired Army Colonel himself, had brought it to the notice of Aviation Minister Ashok Gajapathi Raju. In a letter to Raju in March, Rathore had said the location for the ceremony where a wreath is laid on behalf of the President, who is the Supreme Commander of armed forces, was a junkyard at Terminal 2 (cargo).

Rathore also said while the Army had, in consultation with and permission of Delhi International Airport Limited (DIAL), created a 'Shradhanjali Sthal' for the ceremony, the Bureau of Civil Aviation Security (BCAS), the nodal aviation security agency, had barred the defence establishment from holding such events in the airside or operational area of the airport.

Responding to Rathore's letter last month, Raju said he had got the issue examined and that "there is a general ban on holding such ceremonies/guard of honour on the airside of the airport".

"However, I am of the considered opinion that shifting of the 'sthal' to any other location other than the airside of the airport would be an ideal and viable solution to this problem," Raju said.

Such a location, he said, would not be in violation of any BCAS circulars or orders. Raju also referred to the discussion he had in this regard with Defence Minister Manohar Parrikar in June.

"Accordingly, I have conveyed no objection to the Ministry of Defence for construction of 'Shradhanjali Sthal' at an alternate site which would not hamper the Civil Aviation operations at the airport," Raju said.

59 dead, hundreds missing in Guatemala landslide

ANI
Guatemala, Oct 04: Rescue workers scabbled through earth and rubble in search of survivors of a massive landslide in Guatemala that killed at least 59 people, even as hopes began to fade for hundreds of others still missing. Diggers plowed into the mounds of earth that destroyed homes in Santa Catarina Pinula on the southeastern flank of Guatemala City looking for about 350 people who authorities said were still unaccounted for after Thursday night's disaster. Loosened by rains, tons of earth, rock and trees cascaded onto part of the town from the hillside above, flattening houses and trapping residents who had gone home for the night. Julio Sanchez, a spokesperson with the volunteer firefighters, said they had confirmed 59 dead, including three victims whose bodies had just arrived in the past hour. Among the dead were 17 children, and there were at least 26 people reported as injured. Around 1,800 soldiers, firemen and neighbours helped with the rescue efforts, according to a spokesman for disaster agency Conred, who said some homes had been buried under about 50 feet (15 meters) of earth. The search would continue for at least 72 hours after the disaster, but officials said the likelihood of locating survivors after that was slim.
