Minor Irrigation –in hot pursuit of total irrigation

DIPR
Imphal, Aug. 22: The state Government is engaged in hot pursuit of most economic and effective measures of tapping natural resource like rain water for irrigation purposes as the water bodies are rain fed and arable lands are scattered in small pockets in the state. The viability of minor irrigation schemes in the state is increasing incessantly during recent years. In the successive years since its inception in 1981, Minor irrigation Department, Manipur has brought a paradigm shift in the realm of irrigation in the state in the public domain. Achievement of the Department in terms of irrigated lands has peaked to 58803 Ha. Still a bulk of cultivable lands in the state particularly in the hilly areas, where minor irrigation is the exclusive option, is needed to be brought under irrigation. The average rate of bringing arable lands under irrigation per year by the Department is to the tune of 3460 Ha, which needs to be improved further so that the objective of total irrigation in the state may be achieved in near future. This situation calls for an exhaustive study on ground and a comprehensive planning accompanied by financial back up by the Government. Various types of Minor Irrigation schemes like surface flow schemes and lift irrigation schemes are being widely implemented in the state. Surface flow irrigation schemes comprise of construction of (a) Pick-up weirs/mini barrages which divert water from rivers/ streams through canals and give water to the agricultural fields. (b) Irrigation tanks which conserve/store rain water or water from hill streams via link channels which can be used for irrigation as and when needed. Lift irrigation schemes are constructed at suitable places for lifting irrigation water from rivers or other water bodies by using diesel/electric pumping sets. The water is conveyed through canals to the nearby irrigation fields. One such lift irrigation scheme have the capacity to irrigate 20 Ha. of agricultural land by deploying a 25 Horse power pumping set. At present Minor Irrigation Schemes are being taken up with central assistance under AIBP funding (now PMKSY) of the Ministry of Water Resources, Government of India and with the funds from other funding agencies such as NLCPR, NEC and NABARD. These schemes are implemented with proper assessment of the suitability of the sites and feasibility of the particular schemes viz. construction of mini barrage or weir, lift irrigation schemes or irrigation tank in relation with the need of the locality. Under Accelerated Irrigation Benefit Programme (AIBP) which was launched in the state from the year 1999-2000 by the Ministry of Water Resources, Govt. of India, the Department has so far completed 843 numbers of minor irrigation schemes at a total cost of Rs 303.43 crore and 43,514 Ha. of cultivable land has been brought under its command, upto 2012-13. It has played a commendable role in promoting agricultural productivity in the areas under its operation. The District wise completed Minor Irrigation schemes are Thoubal – 156, Chandel – 35, Bishnupur-102, Churachandpur-67, Imphal East – 125, Imphal West – 122, Ukhrul – 70, Tamenglong – 43 and Senapati – 123. Another 102 clusters of Minor Irrigation schemes were under implementation now at the total cost of Rs. 170.37 crore with a target of 12,904 Ha. Under the Non-Lapsable Central Pool of Resources (NLCPR), the Department had completed 5 projects viz (i) Modernisation of Kakching Ithei Maru Main canal at the cost of Rs.340.00 lakh, 2) Construction of Mini Barrage a/c Itam river at Kharasom Imphal East, at the cost of Rs.361.00 lakh, (iii) Construction of Mini Barrage over Itok river at Chandrakhong at a cost of Rs.498.00 lakh (iv) Construction of Mini Barrage across Wangjing river near Canteen Lampak with project cost of Rs.498.00 lakh (v) Construction of weir across Narmia river at Kongkhan Thana with project cost of Rs.306.00 lakh. A total of 4889 Ha. of land has been brought under the command of these projects. During the current financial year NABARD had sanctioned Rs. 950.00 lakh to repair 20 (twenty) Minor Irrigation Schemes which were badly damaged by the flash flood occurred in July, 2015.

Imphal War Cemetery has become a hang out zone for hot teens

Laishram Ranbir
Imphal, August 20: The boom of social media is a boon to the people; but with the massive scale popularity of online communicating platform among the teens happen to raise the elbows of various social scientists since the past few years. Social networking sites empowered to communicate among like-minded groups or people across the globe in a virtual world. Taking advantage of this empowerment, some youths are found using social media platform to outburst their happy moments, anguish and frustrations. But to perverts and pedophiles the sites are their best tool to influence their morale and look for prey without revealing their identity. While surfing the social media networking site- Facebook, suddenly I bumped into a group photo uploaded by a youth from the state on the wall of his seemingly fake profile. The photo shows four teenage boys enjoying their days at Imphal War Cemetery, situated near Chingmeirong here. Two among the four boys were seating on haunches upon the Commonwealth burial stone of the martyrs of the World War II situated at the war memorial place, while one was seen with a live cigarette and showing his middle finger in the picture which is popular among his Facebook friends. 'If you waNa know aBt me rule no 1. U giv godM #FK 2. I give U my #DK jus lik a once in A #Blue moon—with...' reads the words posted along with the photo on the wall one Edw.d Pu.k S...ma. The proclamation of this young Facebook user and his peers talk about the way how they could have make use of the popular online networking site? Such Facebook-isation of life and 'look at me' culture among the Facebook and other social media users may damage the mental health of the youth in the long run. With the reportedly increasing cyber crime rate in the state, the pro-active role of cyber crime branch of Manipur Police Department is highly felt in the state. On top of it, the war cemetery, which is considered as a holy and important place to many families of II World War heroes turned into a favorite hangout place for lovebirds and dumping ground for tourists as well as neighbor. Owing to lack of manpower, the staffs of have also left the place at the mercy of visitors.
