

CSOs brief BJP chief concerns over FA

IT News
Imphal, Dec. 23: A delegation comprising of leaders of major civil society organizations in Manipur called on the president of BJP Amit Shah at his residence last evening to discuss pertinent issues relating to the framework agreement between the Centre and NSCN-IM.

According to a press release, the leaders of UCM, CCSK and AMUCO apprised Amit Shah of severe implications if any resolution inserted in the agreement adversely affects the interest of Manipur during the discussion at the latter's 11 Akbar Road residence in the national capital which lasted for around 30 minutes.

On the other hand, the delegation met home secretary Rajiv Gauba today and participated in a detailed discussion on the framework agreement. While allaying the worst fears of the people of Manipur that the territory of their state will be harmed as one of the outcome of talks between the Centre and NSCN-IM Rajiv reportedly gave assurance that the interest of the state will not be compromised. The CSO contingent categorically told the BJP president that the interest of Manipur cannot be sacrificed in the process of thrashing out a solution with Naga militant group and that every new development concerning the peace talk should be made transparent to all the communities concerned, the release stated. The government of India should respect the fact that Manipur has its own political and historical identity originating centuries back and the former should restrict all its appeasement policies within the domain of this reality, it stated warning that the acting in the opposite will never result in a practical and long lasting solution. Abrupt declaration of any agreement without taking into cognizance the people and government of Manipur will trigger a tense situation which will be worse than the public uprising in 2001, the delegation foretold the chief of the ruling party in the Centre. The people of Arunachal Pradesh, Manipur and Assam must be consulted before releasing the final draft of the framework agreement if the boundaries of the states are to be disturbed, it added. After listening to the issues raised by the representative of the CSOs Shah promised that the matter brought up in the meeting and those included in the memorandum to the prime minister will be put up before the PM, home minister and all concerned authorities for prudent study.

Corruption: Election, Evidence and Ignorance

By : Jinine Lai (Asst. Prof. International College, University of Suwon, S Korea)
Corruption can be generally understood as the malpractice for personal gain by syphoning of public money and by misusing of government offices and powers. In fact, bribery and nepotism is often a segment of it in contemporary Manipur. What we have come along with corruption is our vital experience in paralyzing the deliverance of governance and deadened the civic sense of community as well. I would like to share three aspects here – they are Election, Evidence and Ignorance. First, the Chief Minister, N Biren articulated something about corruption at an inauguration occasion of a community hall at LuwangangbamMakhal, Leikaion 14 August. He articulated that in case people are committed to a corruption free voting in election then we will be able to have a corruption free government. Somewhere back in 2008 when he was in Congress, three four of us approached him for a human rights event support. In that morning at his government bungalow he told us about those houseful visitors from his constituency coming to meet him. They were there seeking help in monetary kind. Those houseful visit happened almost on everyday basis. He explicated that how many rupees he had to help with which was logically beyond his legitimate income and fund. That made me feel myself guilty of the situation of seeking support from him. Each minister and MLA is obliged to spend a huge amount of money before and after he or she wins the election to make sure a winnable size of voters are retained in his or her favor. If this tradition is not maintained, no doubt, no chance of winning the democratic battle is so unequivocal. N Biren's proposition is of the both rational and realistic. Usually the talking point about corruption and electoral malpractices associates the conundrum – 'Which first, egg or hen?' Who are responsible for such derailment of democratic destination? The public put up a reciprocal attitude based on the past experience that the politicians are the people of big lucrative profit and power hunters and they invest their resources for their families, nears and dears to harvest a good return out of electoral trading. The politicians are absent of the concerns and commitments towards the deliverance of governance, rule of law, human rights, social and economic well-being, may be because of % Their motivation is derived from the strong ambition for possession of more power, inflating of movable and non-movable assets

% They have attached to an attitude that when it comes down to the electoral practices the voters are good for nothing. They understand the voters are causing an extensive exhaustion of candidates' monetary resources.
% At the end of day, majority of them discover themselves they are none but puppets of chief/high commands. The chances for changes are also very scanty. There has been retention of old reign repetition of politicians over the several electoral terms. The one fundamental factor of this, is the non-availability of alternative, because of the fact that the choice poses between bad and worse. Hence the bads are elected and are allowed to remain to rule the ruckus. Second, as far as anti-corruption goes, the witness and evidence always carries a question mark. Whenever we put up corruption in legitimate domain, it boils down to witness and evidence. Then it reduces to a rhetoric and insubstantial noise. Here, a court room imagination is switched in my mind in a case of corruption versus evidence.

Judge – Where is your witness and evidence?
Man – Sir, those massive money thrown in the elections, the towering houses and all those movable and immovable assets accumulated.
Judge – But they cannot be the evidence in the court unless you establish them.
Man (Feels helpless but after a while) – Sir, I got you! Here you are!
Judge – What's that?
Man – Sir, my humble question to you. Are you a human or Jesus Christ?
Judge – What do you mean?
Man – I mean, did your mother give birth to you in the manner the Virgin Mary did?
Judge – No, I'm very much a human.
Man – Then sir, your parents had sex. Do you have any witness of that copulation?
(A murmur in the rooms the judge keeps quiet)
Man – Isn't that a circumstantial evidence yet no witness, sir?
