Politicking the politics

“LIES” no matter how big or small always crack the foundation of “TRUST”. There were times when the candidates made false promises during election time and fooled the people to woe the voter. The moment they were elected they often forgot what they had promised to the people often led a live thinking that the general public who elected them are bunch of ignorant fools who can be driven at any direction. The sinister concept become phenomenon and now people (almost all) now started thinking that there is no true leader who deserve victory in any of the election. But as the hangover system still has to be followed and continue there cannot be a full stop to the ongoing process. Election is mandatory for a democratic country. And for that candidates are required. In-order to form government there again need political party and those candidates need to be attached to any of the political party to render their service with effective power.

We are not sure if God frequently surfaces in the form of man, as is commonly believed. But what we can be dead certain is the fact that his arch enemy Satan often manifests himself, especially in Manipur, in the form of politicians. These incarnations of Satan, who are now running amok with the people’s sensibilities, have cast such a nasty spell on the state that it is well nigh impossible for the people who elected them in the first place, to retain even a semblance of sanity. There could be no other logical explanation to the goings on in the political arena than taking refuge in the unnatural and the irrational. And for the teeming millions who had inflicted this handful of pests on themselves, there could be no other option but to bemoan their fate. The curse, call it the millenium curse, is well and truly upon us.

It would be an understatement to say that there is something very basically wrong with our polity. Things have now come to such a pass that our state of Manipur can neither move forward nor backward but remain painfully suspended in a maze of anarchy and disorder.

The scourge of politicians have indeed taken a heavy toll, not only of the riches but also of its psyche. The epidemic is now all pervading and has invaded the very roots of the country’s integrity and well being thereby impeding its prosperity and peace. Whatever the party, whatever their ideology and hue, when it comes to pursuit of power and pelf, our politicians are at their very best and very united too in their mission.

If only these characters demonstrate the same solidarity and zeal in nation building, things would have been much different. But alas, their penchant for self-preservation has always won over patriotism, their quest for wealth has always been at the nation’s expense and above all their instinct for survival has always prevailed over the nation’s.

They have always prospered even as the state disintegrated, and they are always in a position of strength, be it ‘secularism or communalism’ that is at play. But what about the 25 lakhs people who elected them? They are never in the reckoning.

Former Congress leader SM Krishna to join BJP today

HI Bengaluru, March 22: Former Karnataka chief minister and Union external affairs minister SM Krishna is scheduled to formally join the Bharatiya Janata Party on Wednesday at its headquarters in New Delhi in the presence of party president Amit Shah. Krishna, 84, had ended his four-decades-old association with the Congress on January 29, citing a shift from its core ideology and a lack of respect for senior leaders as reasons for the decision.

There had been much speculation on his likely move, and it had been widely anticipated that he would join the BJP after he ruled out joining the Janata Dal (Secular). “Krishna is a very senior politician with experience both at the Centre and in the state,” senior state BJP leader KS Eshwarappa said. “Apart from his personal influence in the Mandya region, he is liked by the educated class for his developmental work in Bengaluru,” Eshwarappa said.

Political analysts, though, are not convinced about the influence he will have and his ability to pull votes. Also, given the BJP virtually sidelining every leader over 75 years of age, it is not clear how the party can capitalize on Krishna joining its ranks.

Krishna, who was the Karnataka Chief Minister from 1999 to 2004, had returned to state politics after stepping down as then external affairs minister in 2012. He has also served as the governor of Maharashtra

CS Dwarakanath, former chairman of the state’s Backward Classes Commission, said Krishna was not a big leader even among Vokkaligas, the caste he belongs to. “He has never been the leader of the Vokkaligas in the same way as former prime minister HD Deve Gowda.”

Dwarakanath said the BJP had some way to go to win seats in the Mysuru and Mandya regions of the state, and was doubtful of Krishna’s influence in the primarily agrarian district. “Krishna’s tenure as chief minister is viewed only as benefiting Bengaluru,” Dwarakanath added. “Krishna’s inclusion might help boost morale among party workers in the region, but is unlikely to significantly impact voters,” Dwarakanath said.

Narendranth Panji, a political analyst, said it would be difficult for the BJP to bank just on Krishna. “He is not a mass leader, but there are no mass leaders in Karnataka. Success in the state’s politics has always been based on the ability to enlist support from a coalition of groups, and Krishna might help in this.”

The Mysuru and Mandya regions have traditionally been tough places for the BJP. In the assembly elections of 2013, the BJP did not win even a single seat in the three districts of Mandya, Mysore and Chamarajanagar, which account for 22 of the 225 seats in the state. In 2008 it won three seats. However, the BJP is not just banking on one disgruntled former Congress politician. It has managed to get into its fold former state minister V Sreenivas Prasad, who resigned his seat and is contesting the by-elections in Nanjangud constituency as a BJP candidate.

In another constituency in the area, Gundlupet, too, the BJP is aiming to make inroads before the assembly polls next year. However, in this constituency the BJP candidate faces off against Geetha Mahadev Prasad, wife of former minister HS Mahadev Prasad, who passed away in January.

The BJP was able to make inroads during the Lok Sabha elections when the party won the Mysore Lok Sabha seat on the back of the ‘Modi wave’.

Punjab and Uttarakhand Chief Ministers to call on PM Narendra Modi, President Pranab Mukherjee today

PTI New Delhi, March 22: The new Chief Ministers of Punjab and Uttarakhand are in New Delhi today in their maiden visit to the capital after assuming office. On separate appointments, Punjab Chief Minister Captain Amarinder Singh and Uttarakhand Chief Minister Trivendra Singh Rawat will meet PM Narendra Modi at his Parliament House office this afternoon and President Mukherjee at Rashtrapati Bhawan in the evening. Mr Rawat met Union Home Minister Rajanth Singh in the morning.

The former ‘Maharaja’ of the erstwhile princely state of Patiala will also call on the top central leadership, including Union Finance Minister Arun Jaitley at his residence in the afternoon. He is likely to seek help and cooperation of the Centre in granting more funds to Punjab. The Captain, as he is popularly known, led the victory of the Congress in Punjab, netting 77 of 117 seats in the assembly elections. Soon after taking charge last Saturday, he ordered the removal of red beacons from all government vehicles, including his own. The Punjab Cabinet announced an end to the use of red beacons on official vehicles by the Chief Minister, ministers, legislators and officers. Mr Rawat, who was sworn-in as the ninth Chief Minister of Uttarakhand last Saturday after BJP’s landslide win in the assembly polls, arrived here yesterday evening. The BJP won 57 of the 70 seats in assembly. On Tuesday, it was the turn of Uttar Pradesh Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath to meet the PM and the President. CM Adityanath also met BJP chief Amit Shah. The duo discussed allotment of ministries.
