From an actor to being called 'Aapli Mumbaichi Mulgi', Congress' star candidate from Mumbai North Lok Sabha constituency, Urmila Matondkar has come a long way. Less than a month after her candidature was announced, Matondkar has been campaigning fiercely to garner support from people. At a rally held in Malad west on Thursday, a huge crowd was waiting in anticipation to catch a glimpse of the star. "We are here to see her not just as an actor, but as a strong woman who seems to be giving a tough fight in the elections. Over the past few days, she has been constantly travelling across the constituency, meeting different people and has attempted to reach out to all, which is a good sign," said Shobhana Kedia, a local resident. As the rally begins, the announcer appeals to people: "Tai mai akka vichar kara pakka, hatala mara shikka!

(Sisters and mothers, take a firm stand and vote for the hand)." As she travels through the inroads of slums, residents come out of their homes and wave out to Matondkar. She is pitted against BJP's sitting MP Gopal Shetty, who had won the 2014 elections against Congress' Sanjay Nirupam by more than 4 lakh votes. It was considered a tough constituency for the Congress and none of its city leaders were keen to contest from here. As such, Matondkar was fielded. In the past couple of weeks, she has created a buzz with her campaign. Several BJP supporters have been seen at her rallies, as they chant 'Modi Modi' to show their loyalty towards the party. The actor, however, said it does not affect her anymore. "I am here to do good work and am humbled to get the love and support of many from the constituency. The crowds that you see today are only a part of the huge backing that I have from people," she tells HT. "Many are hopeful about my win and call me to discuss their issues." The actor campaigns in two to three slots every day, with just small breaks in between. "Unlike Govinda, who won from the constituency but never came back here, she shows commitment," said Mahendra Tembe, 52, a Malad resident.

The incident was captured on cameras of news channels covering the rally in the district, around 130 km from here. As soon as Hardik Patel started his speech at Baldana village under Wadhwan taluka, a man suddenly came on the stage and slapped him. Priyanka Chaturvedi quits Congress, Shiv Sena says she will join them

Agency
New Delhi April 19,

Priyanka Chaturvedi, who quit the Congress, is set to join the Shiv Sena, party spokesperson Sanjay Raut said. Chaturvedi had been unhappy with the Congress after the party reinstated partymen she had accused of "misbehaving" with her. She sent her resignation to Congress president Rahul Gandhi on Thursday. She was the Congress national spokesperson and convenor of party's media cell. Chaturvedi had recently publicly criticised the party's decision to reinstate partymen, she had accused of "misbehaving" with her during a press conference in Mathura last year. The Uttar Pradesh Congress had suspended some party workers following her complaint. They were recently reinstated, reportedly on the recommendation of Jyotiraditya Scindia, the Congress in-charge of UP

West. On Wednesday, Chaturvedi targeted the party leadership saying the Congress gave preference to "lumpen goons" over those who gave their "sweat and blood" to the party. "In the last few weeks certain things have convinced me that my services are not valued in the organization and that I have reached the end of the road," she wrote to Gandhi "with a heavy heart." "A serious incident and misbehaviour against me by certain party members while I was on official duty for the party has been ignored under the guise of all hands needed for elections. This indignity to me has been the final factor to convince me to move on focus on other things outside INC," her letter reads. Chaturvedi took to Twitter to denounce the move saying, "Deeply saddened that lumpen goons get preference in @incindia over those who have given their sweat and blood. Having faced brickbats and abuse across board for the party yet those who threatened me within the party getting away with not even a rap on their knuckles is unfortunate (sic)." Earlier, she changed her bio on micro-blogging site Twitter. She had dropped 'AICC Spokesperson' from her Twitter bio. Omar Abdullah, leader of the Congress's alliance partner the National Conference, said Chaturvedi was "an asset" to the Congress. "To have lost her to selfish personal interests would have been no loss but to lose her because she felt her party didn't stand up for her is all the more unfortunate. All the best going ahead Priyanka," Abdullah wrote on Twitter.

If Rahul Gandhi becomes Prime Minister, I will sit by his side: Deve Gowda

Agency
New Delhi April 19,

Former prime minister Deve Gowda, 85, who is contesting from Karnataka's Tumkur parliamentary constituency, said that if Rahul Gandhi becomes the Prime Minister of the country, he will be by his side. Commenting on his son and Karnataka Chief Minister HD Kumaraswamy's statement that there is a possibility that Deve Gowda might become the Prime Minister as a consensus candidate, he said: "I am not bothered about this. My concern is Modi will come to Parliament. I have got the guts and conviction to tell it to the face of the PM. I have the courage. If Rahul Gandhi becomes the Prime Minister, I will sit by his side. It is not necessary to become the Prime Minister," reports ANI. The JD(S) chief, who along with his two grandsons is contesting the ongoing Lok Sabha elections, also made it clear that he was not retiring from active politics. "I announced three years back that I will not contest elections. There are circumstances now in which I have been forced to contest. There is nothing to hide. I have no ambition of anything but what I always said is that I am not going to retire from active politics," Gowda said. When asked if he wanted to retire like Advani, he said 'no', adding, "I want to save my party first and last the office building," ANI reported. Speaking about his commitment to the Congress, he said: "Madam Sonia Gandhi has taken the decision to support Deve Gowda even though we are a small party. Now it is my responsibility to move forward with Congress, though I do agree in some states there is no question of any coalition. But in Tamil Nadu, there is a coalition between Congress and DMK and with Sharad Pawar's party in Maharashtra." Responding to accusations of saving the family rather than the party, the JD(S) chief said: "Several leaders who worked with me collectively, have left. Some people are in Congress, some in BJP. I was able to keep the party intact but suffered. I have not allowed my family members to become president of the party." Deve Gowda's two grandchildren Nikhil Kumar, son of chief minister HD Kumaraswamy, and Prajwal Revanna, son of public works minister HD Revanna, are contesting the general elections. While Gowda vacated his Hassan seat for Prajwal, Nikhil is in fray from neighbouring Mandya.
