The Chief Minister continued that as parents and guardians take up different professions to be able to provide best education to their wards and also ensure their welfare. As such, the Government and its officials, as guardians of the public, should take up every possible effort to ensure welfare of the people and development of the State at large. He stated that Government officials shouldn't take up any steps which would later create controversies among people and different communities. Instead, officials should work systematically to create a society where different communities live together happily, he added.

Expressing his appreciation on the publication of "Lourunshang da Nongma", an informative comic book on land related issues, N. Biren stressed the need for regular evaluation on how effectively services are provided to the public. Such a step would enable us to know the actual coverage of various welfare schemes of the Government across the State, he added. Wushu Association of Manipur founders seek government intervention

IT News
Imphal, June 20:

Dissatisfied with the handling of issues pertaining to the Wushu Association of Manipur and other district units of the association, founder members of Wushu's apex governing body have requested that the State Government keep a close eye on the Registrar of Cooperative Societies, Manipur.

In a press conference held today at the Manipur Press Club, founder members of the Wushu Association of Manipur and members of various district units expressed grave concern about the proliferation of parallel governing sport bodies and "inappropriate handling" by the Registrar of Cooperative Societies.

Given the unfortunate development, the speakers drew the attention of the Chief Minister to include and assist in resolving the issue in the proposed 100-day action plan in the larger interest of Wushu athletes and enthusiasts.

According to a founding member of the Manipur Wushu Association, the association was founded in 1990 and, after a long journey, reached an impasse on July 5, 2019, with some individuals attempting to govern the body in their own self-interest. After carefully reviewing the situation, the Court directed the Registrar of Cooperative Societies to intervene and arrange for the election of office bearers on July 7, the same year.

As the election process stalled, the founder members approached the Registrar of Cooperative Societies on March 4, 2020, but the process was halted due to subsequent waves of the Covid pandemic, he said.

Meanwhile, another problem arose for the Association, and the case was remanded to the Court on October 5, 2021. However, despite the High Court of Manipur's ruling and the wishes of many stakeholders, an attempt was made to hold elections for office bearers on July 16 this year. According to him, the "controversial development" and "likely attempt" to recruit new association members astounded the founder members and other enthusiasts.

He also expressed concern that the tense situation, if not addressed by the appropriate authorities, could lead to unwelcome incidents.

He also highlighted the uproar and confusion experienced by district associations as a result of mismanagement on the part of the Registrar of Cooperative Societies, such as the issuance of a new registration number to the Imphal East District Wushu Association in 2019 despite the fact that the association received its registration number in 2016; the relocation of the office address of the Imphal West Wushu Association from Sajirok to Singjamei Hao ground and the address of the Bishnupur District Wushu Association from Thounaojam to Nachou etc.

IT News
Imphal, June 20:

Manipur High Court directs MSPCL and MSPDCL not to give service confirmation to all the OBC candidates till their OBC certificate verification is completed by the competent authority.

The Manipur High Court has ordered MSPCL and MSPDCL to refrain from confirming employment for all OBC candidates till the appro-appropriate authorities has verified their OBC certificates.

On October 30, 2014, 38 Assistant Engineers were appointed in both the corporation. This resulted in the appointment of 10 (ten) OBC candidates in the MSPDCL and 4 (four) candidates in the MSPCL.

A writ petition was filed in the High Court of Manipur before the bench of Hon'ble Justice MV. Muralidaran, requesting that all OBC candidates be denied confirmation until their verifications are completed by the competent authority in consultation with the Creamy Layer Category, and as such, the Hon'ble Court may kindly call for the OBC Certificates of all selected candidates in order to examine whether the appointments made under the OBC category were genuine. And, if the appointments were made in violation of the OBC guidelines, the appointments of all OBC candidates who are not qualified under the guidelines must be quashed and set aside.

The appointments of all the OBC candidates have become doubtful as the certificates have not been furnished by the concerned department while seeking through RTI.

Prior to this, Imphal Times had also written about the illegal hiring of these 38 Assistant Engineers in place of the 25 advertised positions.

Youth involved in sabotage won't get job

Talking Points

Narvijay Yadav

As the ongoing protest of the youth against the Agnipath scheme for 4-years recruitment in the Indian armed forces has spread to 19 states, large-scale damage has been done to the national property including railway stations, trains, buses, and other government vehicles at different places in the country. There are incidents of sabotage and arson. Railway tracks and roads are also being blocked due to which the general public is facing a lot of trouble. Violent agitations started after the Central Government announced the Agnipath scheme on June 14. The agitations began in Bihar and spread to Uttar Pradesh, Punjab, Haryana, and many other states. Surprisingly, news related to sabotage, violence and road blocking, and agitation is being given in detail in the newspapers, but nowhere in these reports is mentioned which organization or political party is spearheading or fuelling the movement. One thing is very clear unorganized youth cannot run such a large-scale movement on their own. Surely there will be such political parties behind this stir, who do not like peace and prosperity in India and who intend to run their shops by burning the country.

Such incidents have been happening again and again in the country for the last few years, when there is a large-scale ruckus and protest as soon as a new scheme of the central government is implemented. The surprising thing is that when big schemes are implemented, why are the schemes not publicized widely in advance? Why is public opinion not taken on schemes which have a large-scale impact? Why don't the schemes properly explained to the stakeholders? What's the point of suddenly forcing a plan on the public? Due to the communication gap, the country has to suffer heavy losses time and again. The same shortcoming was noticed during the time of the controversial Farm Laws. In June 2020, the three agricultural laws were approved by the parliament in a hurry, when the country was under lockdown and the distribution of newspapers had come to a standstill. Now the Agnipath scheme has been announced in the same manner for the recruitment of short-service Agniveers in the armed forces.

The scale at which the Agnipath programme is being opposed, raises the question that why not those people are not informed in advance for whom the plans are made? Why their opinion is not taken into account at the beginning itself? Why not such plans are reconsidered even after their stiff opposition. So much sabotage, violence, loss, and trouble caused to the general public, and loss of government property can be avoided if the communication gap is not maintained. At the same time, youth are also expected to behave responsibly. On the one hand, they want to join the army, and on the other side, they are involved in the sabotage of public property. This is not done. Even peacefully you can register your protest. Why do you resort to violence? Why are you damaging government property, which is basically a public asset?

The youth involved in violent protests should understand one thing very well the records of agitators are kept with the police. Due to this reason, the youth involved in such criminal acts may face a lot of difficulty in getting government jobs in the future. Youth have the right to protest against the Agnipath scheme of the government, but they do not have the right to damage national property. It is also a crime to cause inconvenience to the citizens of the nation. Violence should never happen in the name of protest. Sabotage cannot be accepted under any circumstances.

People are also being harassed by the new-age digital loan providers. Many digital companies on social media give enticing advertisements for easy loan lending. The reactions of the borrowers show that they got the loan easily, but have been facing many problems later. These companies may charge interest arbitrarily and harass the borrowers in various ways if the money is not returned. Reserve Bank of India (RBI) Governor, Shakti Kant Das is worried about this pattern. He has said that the banking sector is passing through a major transformation and the Reserve Bank of India is looking to issue guidelines to strengthen the digital lending ecosystem soon. The rules will be tightened on the digital companies giving loans because it has become necessary to do so in the interest of the common people. With the entry of technology-based giants such as Google, Amazon, and Facebook (Meta) into the financial sector, the threat to ordinary consumers will increase further. The entry of such giant companies into the financial business will not only increase competition but will also raise questions about the privacy of data. It is necessary to assess such risks and put in place mechanisms to deal with them. Thanks to the RBI for smelling the trouble and taking measures.

The Delhi-Dehradun Expressway will pass through the Rajaji National Park which is home to several species of wildlife like Guldar, Barasingha, Deer, Elephant, Crocodile, and Nilgai. World and Myanmar Military must hear the voices of the Rohingya Rally 'go home' in Bangladesh Camps

By: Kyaw Min

Thousands of Rohingyas launched a go-home campaign and held rallies in multiple camps in Cox's Bazar's Ukhiya and Teknaf on June 19 and 20, 2022, hoping to return to Myanmar.

They made a list of demands at the rallies, including starting immediate repatriation and resettlement of Rohingyas to Myanmar, repealing Myanmar's Citizenship Act of 1982, ensuring Rohingya rights, safety, and security in Myanmar, closing IDP camps in Rakhine state, and putting an end to torture of innocent people in Myanmar. From 8:00 a.m., Rohingyas men and children joined rallies in most of the 34 camps and sang slogans.

They stated that they do not want to remain in Bangladesh and instead want to return to their homeland of Arakan, currently known as Rakhine. For the first time since 2019, the government has allowed large protests in Rohingya camps. Mohib Ullah, a prominent Rohingya leader who was assassinated on September 29, 2021, organized the huge protest in August 2019 with the help of some other voluntary organizations.

The UN ambassador for Myanmar has been encouraged to advocate for the early repatriation of Rohingyas Muslims. The most recent marches in Rohingya camps took place ahead of World Refugee Day, which was marked worldwide on June 20, 2022. 'We are Myanmar citizens,' 'Myanmar is our motherland,' and 'Let's go' were among the banners and posters carried by Rohingyas to the rallies.

'Please UN, help us return to our motherland; please world community, help us save our rights in Myanmar,' says a giant banner. The rallies were held to raise the attention of the world community to their desire for return to Myanmar, according to the organizers. They wanted the international community to support their homecoming.

The protests were intended to send a message to the world that they wanted to return to their homeland. The Rohingyas were voicing their views from their respective positions.

According to media reports, round 10,000 Rohingyas attended protests in 11 locations across 15 camps. Following the 2017 flood of persecuted Myanmar nationals fleeing military crackdowns in Rakhine state to Bangladesh for safety, the number of Rohingya people in Bangladesh has surpassed 1 million.

'Let's go home,' demonstrators screamed in Cox's Bazar on June 19 during a demonstration at Ukhiya and Teknaf. According to pamphlets issued prior of the protests, slain civilian leader Mohib Ullah's organization was among the organizers.

'Can you tell me how many days there are left...?' 'Let's go home, let's travel to Myanmar,' 'Myanmar is our Motherland,' 'United Nations, Please Help Us Go Home,' and 'We Want Justice, We Want Our Rights,' read slogans on banners carried by protesters in Burmese and English. They held rallies that were highly armed and escorted by law enforcement. For a few days, the migrants ran a 'Let's Go Home' campaign to rally support for the protests.

The Myanmar military carried out the operation with genocidal intent, according to the UN. 'We're the Rohingya in Bangladesh refugee camps who survived a Rohingya genocide,' the 'Let's Go Home' campaign leaflets stated. Rallies were held at Camp No. 26 and 27 in Teknaf at around 9:30 a.m., according to law enforcement and Rohingya authorities. Protesters marched from Camp No. 27 to Camp No. 26, where they assembled near the camp-in-office. Charge's

'The Rohingyas are Myanmar's persecuted Muslims. 'We've been forcibly made stateless people.' 'It's been five years since we left our native country in 2017.' 'How long will we be stranded? We don't want to be homeless, and we're concerned about our children's future. We wish to go back to Arakan and live there as legal residents.' Rohingyas voices are reflecting around the camps.

Since 1978, the Rohingya people have been exposed to crimes such as rape, murder, and arson attacks. Several times, their communities were set on fire. Myanmar refuses to provide the Rohingya people citizenship and basic rights. Rohingyas expressed gratitude to Bangladesh for providing humanitarian sanctuary to the Rohingya community. 'However, Bangladesh is not our birthplace. We'd like to go back to Myanmar.'

Myanmar citizenship, time-bound return with dignity, security, and accountability are among the requests included in the pamphlets. They also want Myanmar to recognize them as a minority ethnic group. Myanmar's Buddhist majority refers to the Rohingya as 'Bengali.'

They stated that the time spent in transit camps should be limited, and that all Rohingyas should be repatriated village by village. The UN agencies, as well as countries such as the United States and Bangladesh, must be included in the repatriation process, according to the demonstrators.

They also urged that the international community safeguard Rakhine's R2P, or Responsibility to Protect. R2P is an international standard designed to ensure that the international community never again fails to prevent genocide, war crimes, ethnic cleansing, and crimes against humanity.

The flyers stated that the Rohingyas people should not be considered as terrorists, that international media should be allowed in all areas of Rakhine, and that the Rohingyas people's property and assets, including as prawn farms and grazing lands, should be returned to them.

5 Years On, the World and Myanmar military are failed to resolve the Rohingya crisis. The international community and Myanmar military must take notice of this campaign because they are one of the most significant audiences for whom such activities are designed. As a current regime, Myanmar military can't remain silent in this regard. English, Burmese, and Rohingya are inscribed on the banners, pamphlets, and placards. Myanmar, the international community, and the Rohingyas are the target audiences. In the last five years, the international community has failed to play an effective role. They have failed to help repatriate Rohingyas in Myanmar. Myanmar military has failed to keep their promises. They have deceived the Rohingyas and democratic protesters. It has not been able to persuade Myanmar to guarantee repatriation. It has also failed to prosecute those who have perpetrated crimes against humanity. Again, as financing for the Rohingyas has dropped over time, they have forgotten about them. As a result, the international community should recognize this movement and leverage its institutional authority to help with the repatriation process.

But this time, Myanmar military must hear the voices of the Rohingyas. If Myanmar military doesn't respond positively, then international community must compel Myanmar to take back the Rohingyas by applying all possible means. Myanmar military's reluctance to take the Rohingyas in their homeland hinders the world peace.

Bangladesh and Myanmar on June 14 held the fifth meeting of the Joint Working Group (JWG) virtually regarding repatriation of the forcibly displaced Rohingyas from Bangladesh to their homeland in Rakhine state of Myanmar. This event would be fruitful if Myanmar military implements decisions taken at the meetings. This time, Myanmar military must keep their words taking back the Rohingyas.

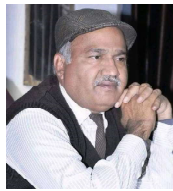

The 'go home' campaign is an outpouring of Rohingya dissatisfaction with the way we have failed them over the last five years. It should be viewed from the standpoint of a victimized community's rights.

The campaign should also act as a "wake-up call" for the international community, which should put pressure on Myanmar to ensure repatriation of its citizens. Myanmar appears unwilling to guarantee repatriation after five years of crisis. Instead, it is merely delaying the process.

The campaign's message must also reach Myanmar, where regular people are fighting for their democratic rights against the regime. Last but not least, by recognizing such nonviolent political initiatives, we should respect the Rohingya community's aspirations and collective memory.

73 dead in Assam floods, Chief Minister reviews situation

Agency
Guwahati, June 20:

With the flood situation in Assam remaining critical on Monday and affecting a population of nearly 43 lakh in 33 of its 35 districts, Chief Minister Himanta Biswa Sarma directed air dropping of food and other relief materials in areas where there is heavy inundation, officials said. Mr Sarma gave the direction after a review meeting with his cabinet colleagues and senior district officers during the day.

The death count in the ongoing flood and landslides in the state increased to 73 on Monday. The dead included two policemen, including an officer in-charge of a police station in Nagaon district who had gone to help marooned people but were swept away. Their bodies were fished out in the early hours of Monday, officials said.

Mr Sarma, who held a virtual meeting with his ministers, senior state government officials and deputy commissioners, directed that top priority must be given to relief and rescue operations and there should be no delay citing procedural rules.

"Airdropping of relief materials must be done in areas where there is heavy flooding and army, NDRF or SDRF boats have not been able to reach", he said.

The chief minister said that for the next few days the district officials should not concern themselves with procedural rules but concentrate on providing relief to the affected people. "If certain arcas are not covered in the relief manual, we will ensure that they are covered under State Owned Priority Development schemes and CM's Relief Fund".

He directed deputy commissioners to keep ready static teams of the health department and ensure daily visits of doctors to relief camps set up for the flood affected. Ambulances should be kept on the standby to shift patients who are in serious condition to nearby hospitals.

Night shifts must be augmented in all district hospitals and special care must be taken of senior citizens, women and children, he said.

Mr Sarma directed the authorities to plan circle-wise mega health camps with the help of the nine medical colleges in the state to ensure that post-flood diseases are effectively dealt with.

He also directed the deputy commissioners of the districts to start immediate assessment of damages as soon as the flood waters begin to recede and complete the work at the earliest.

All guardian ministers and secretaries, except those required for urgent flood related work at the state secretariat, should be in their respective district headquarters to oversee flood relief work, he added.

The state has been reeling under devastating floods for the past one week with 127 revenue circles and 5,137 villages affected in 33 districts, according to a bulletin of the Assam State Disaster Management Authority (ASDMA).

The Maharashtra Vikas Aghadi faces a challenge in Legislature Council Polls

By Raju Vernekar
Mumbai, June 20:

The Maharashtra Vikas Aghadi (MVA) is facing a challenge of ensuring the victory of all its candidates in the election to 10 seats of the Maharashtra Legislative Council (MLC) slated to be held on Monday, June 20 at Vidhan Bhavan in South Mumbai.

The members of the Maharashtra Legislative Assembly will cast their votes to elect the 10 candidates to the Maharashtra Legislative Council, the Upper House of the state legislature.

Having fielded one additional candidate each, both Congress and the BJP are depending upon the votes of Independents and smaller parties. Relatively the position of the Shiv Sena is safe and has no surplus vote. The NCP requires one additional vote, which it can get from the Shiv Sena.

The 11 candidates fielded for the 10 seats are Shiv Sena-Sachin Ahir (Mumbai, former Minister), Amshya Phulji Padvi (Nandurbar, North Maharashtra), NCP-Ramraje Naik Nimbalkar (Satara) (Chairman of the MLC), Eknath Khadse (formerly in BJP, former Minister). Congress- Chandrakant Handore (Former Mumbai Mayor and Minister), Bhai Jagtap (President Mumbai Regional Congress Committee).

The candidates (clockwise): Sachin Ahir, Amshya Padvi, Chandrakant Handore, Bhai Jagtap, Pravin Darekar, Ram Shinde, Prasad Lad, Uma Khapre, and Shrikant Bharatiya.

BJP- Pravin Darekar (Mumbai, Formerly in MNS) (Leader of the Opposition in the MLC), Prof Ram Shinde (Ahmednagar, former Minister), Shrikant Bharatiya (Amravati, BJP General Secretary), Prasad Lad (formerly NCP, now BJP (Maharashtra Vice President), Uma Khapre (Pimpri-Chinchwad, President of the BJP Mahila Morcha).

The candidates are required to secure 27 first preference votes to get elected. The MVA has cumulative strength of 161, whereas the BJP has 123 MLAs with supporting Independent MLAs and the MLAs of smaller parties.

Under the circumstances, two candidates each of Shiv Sena and NCP, one candidate of Congress, and four candidates of BJP are expected to get elected smoothly. However, Congress needs 12 additional votes for its second candidate and the BJP needs 22 additional votes for its 5th candidate. A fierce competition is anticipated between Bhai Jagtap (Congress) and Prasad Lad (BJP).

Since the MVA could not win the sixth seat (Shiv Sena's Sanjay Pawar) in the recent Rajya Sabha election due to cross-voting, the MVA leaders are doubly cautious.

In the Rajya Sabha election Sanjay Raut (Shiv Sena) skipped through with just 41 votes, whereas the MVA constituent-Mohammed Imran Pratapgarhi (Congress) bagged 44 votes and Praful Patel(NCP) 43 votes. BJP candidates -Piyush Goyal polled 48, Anil Bonde secured 48, and Dhananjay Mahadik captured 41.56, out of the 284 valid votes polled.

The BJP under the leadership of Devendra Fadnavis (leader of the Opposition in the state legislature assembly) has been working overnight to keep the flock of supporting MLAs together to ensure victory of all its 05 candidates.

Strength of parties in the Assembly

The strength of different parties in the 288-member Maharashtra Legislative Assembly is Shiv Sena-55, NCP-53, Congress-44, BJP-106, independent-13, Bahujan Vikas Aghadi-03, Samajwadi Party-02, All India Majlis-e-Ittehadul Muslimen (MiM)-02, Prahar Janshakti-02, MNS-01, CPM-01, Swabhimani-01, Rashtriyi Samaj Paksha-01, Jansurajya Shakti-01, Peasants and Workers' Party-01, Krantikari Shetakari Paksha-01= 287 +one seat has fallen vacant after demises of Ramesh Latke)=288.

Of 287 Nawab Malik and Anil Deshmukh (NCP) are in jail and Kshitij Thakur(BVA) is stated to be abroad. In such circumstances, 284 members will decide the fate of the 11 candidates, and the quota for first preference votes may come down.

In any case, the election will prove once again whether or not the constituents of the MVA Government work in unison and whether smaller parties support it or not.

How to prepare for NEET(UG)

Timetable Scheduling
Check for the topics in all three subjects.

Segregate the topics into three and give them taglines as Cold, Warm and Hot. Cold should include the easy topics or the topics you are proficient in.

Include the moderate topics under the Warm tagline.

The hot tagline should include time-consuming or hard topics that are difficult to understand.

Now set a target score to achieve create four different sections in your timetable

Place the topics which are assigned as cold in the first section of the timetable, fill the second section with the topics assigned under Warm, Fill the third section with the topics assigned under the Hot tagline.

Dedicate the fourth column for adding reviews on your preparation thus you can improve yourself by referring to it.

The timetable is completely drafted now, next is execution Start the day with the topics which come under the cold tagline.

Beginning with the cold topics would give you the confidence to face the Warm and hot topics fearlessly.

Dedicate more time to the Hot topics and revise them thoroughly daily.

Include the previous year's question papers in the Warm tag. Try solving almost all the questions from the previous year's question paper and check with the answer key.

Create your own questions and try solving them. Make sure to attend at least one mock test daily so that you can evaluate yourself and put more hard work into the required topics.

We have created a study planner for you guys. Please take a look at it

5. Set Daily targets

Setting targets and achieving them at the exact time planned can help you to cover the NEET topics in the desired period. This will increase your confidence level and it's a motivation factor that fuels your NEET preparation. The most vital thing which needs to be minded while setting targets is always to set realistic ones or else the whole concept of setting targets will backfire.

6. Practice more and more NEET MCQs

After the completion of each NEET topic, workout on all types of MCQs comes under that topic. Basidia holds more than thirty-three thousand NEET MCQs with detailed explanations. Try to answer at least 150-200 MCQs, the more you answer the stronger your knowledge on that particular NEET topic would be. Mark the wrong answer and learn that separately until you are clear with the topic.

7. Workout previous year NEET question papers

This is the best and most effective way to understand the pattern of examination as well as the syllabus. This helps you to cover each and every possible question that can be expected for the NEET examination. The NEET previous year's questions with proper explanation can be accessed from Basidia and even the Internet is a good source for finding previous year's question papers but it would be hard to find the proper explanation.

8. Attend NEET Mock Tests Online Frequently

It is essential that students who are preparing for NEET without coaching should conduct self-analysis, and the easiest way to do so is to taking up mock test online. Taking up NEET Mock test online allows candidates to practice for real exam circumstances while also learning about their own strengths and limitations.

NEET Mock tests are simulations of genuine exams that can be used to practice the exam pattern in an exam-like setting. Attending numerous NEET mock tests allows you to examine your performance while also improving your time management abilities. A mock test can be used to discover your weak points so that you can work to improve them.

9. Revise until you master

Let it be any exam, the revision must be an integral part of your preparation because revision helps you to have a complete review of your preparation, and thereby you can make required changes on your preparation method. The regular revision will help you to have deep roots in the topic. We have a dedicated revision scheduler where you can plan schedule your revisions ahead after completing each practice test. We recommend you conduct a revision after completing each chapter.

10. Motivate Yourself

Motivation is the key route to success. Motivations help people to gain complete confidence and speed up the activities they intend to do. Motivation is a psychological factor that contributes a lot. If you feel very much tired or feel like the preparation process is not meeting your expectations. Take a short break and think about your best exam performances during your school time.

Think about the achievements you gained and understand you are your mentor, there is no one to guide you or correct you. You are very much aware that you are capable of doing this because this has been done in the past and this can be done by you also.

When you are attending mock tests, act like you are attending the real NEET exam and complete it in a single stretch, don't pause in between

While attending mock tests, always choose the full-length mock test, instead of subject-wise mock tests.

Targets should be completed at the expected time and if not add it to the next day's, but don't make it a habit

Revision is mandatory for all the topics even if you are good at some. Because the questions in the NEET exam are completely unpredictable and you have to be perfect with each side of the topic.

Don't hesitate to practice the MCQs daily. Keep in mind that its practice that makes a man perfect.

There is nothing wrong with seeking help from your seniors or previous year students but choose genuine persons.

Don't stress yourself, if you are taking so much time to complete any particular topic, take a short break and relax.

Try to find out your weak points and carve them into your strongest points.

The focus is everything and your focus should be very clear and work hard for it, remember at the end of all this you are going to achieve your dream to become a doctor.

Take care of your health, sleep a minimum of 7 hours or else you will get exhausted really fast on the next day.

Be honest to yourself and be honest with your preparation.
