IT Correspondent

Sifting of Jiri river course wiped out vast areas of Manipur land in the Assam side.

The land of Manipur which was cut off by the Jiri river in the previous flood had been claimed by the people of Assam as their land.

The land is once located at Khusoi thuk of Kamranga Muslim Village under Hilghat Gram Panchayat of Jiribam District. More than hundred bigas of Manipur State land were now cut off by jiri river and deposited on the other side of river which is adjacent with the Namdailong and Lakhinagar villages of Lakhimpur Sub-division, Assam.

Speaking with the media person, the local resident of Kamranga village, Jiribam L. Bilaks Meetei said due to flood more than 100 bigas of Kamranga Muslim Village land were cut off by jiri river which are the patta land of Manipur State. Due to such catastrophe the fate of the said land owner were remain indecisive at present. As the local of Assam claimed the said cut off land of Assam state and the people of Kamranga village were restricted to enter into the land.

He appealed to the Manipur State governments and concern authority for their consideration into the matter and to bring the solution of land dispute, unless such erosion of Jiri river will recede the Manipur Map geographically.

RPF to ban import of some specific fishes from outside the state

IT News
Imphal, Oct 14:

Proscribed group Revolutionary People's Front (RPF) has stated that organization will ban import of some specific fishes from outside the state from October 15, 2024. A statement of the armed rebel group said that those in the fish trade should start preparation of buying the said fishes from local fish farmers after 2 years. Those fishes that will be ban importing from outside the state are Catla, Mrigal, Grass Carp, Scale Carp/common carp, Rahu, silver carp and Telipia. However, there will be no ban in importing fishes that are not found in the region such as sea fishes and others that are found in big rivers, the statement said.

The RPF statement said that the ban is decided to impose for protection of the people from buying chemical feed fishes that are procured from outside the state and also to restore the fish farming and production which were abundant in the region.

According to the statement, this ban is the first step toward self-sufficiency in fish production by 2024, as well as saving a significant amount of money spent on fish purchased outside the state. Manipur's annual fish consumption requirement is approximately 52,000 metric tonnes, but the State's fish farmers produce only approximately 32,000 metric tonnes. The remaining fish for human consumption is imported from other states, with an annual expenditure of Rs. 300 crore.

The construction of the Ithai Barrage as part of the Loktak power project submerged 80,000 hectares of cultivable land, rendering farmers ineffective. The Ithai barrage is the primary cause of fish extinction and the loss of our natural fishery. Ithai Barrage had blocked the migratory route of fishes migrating from Burma's Chindwin-Irrawaddy system to the course of the Manipur river for breeding in Manipur's adjoining lakes and streams.

The Proscribed group lastly appeal to all to everyone to support our fishermen and assist them turn Manipur into a fish-producing state that can support itself.

Washing hands prevents disease and puts everyone else at ease

By: Vinod Chandrashekhar Dixit

Every year we observe October 15 as Global Handwashing Day to remind people about the importance of hand hygiene to health. India has one third of the world's poorest population and the Global Goals have a significant role to play especially at a time when 1.3 billion people are forced to live in poverty across the world. There is a need to increase awareness and understanding about the importance of hand washing with soap as an easy, effective, and affordable way to prevent diseases and save our lives. The habit of proper hand washing is directly linked to one's health especially among school going children. During the COVID-19 pandemic it became obvious to the world that proper hand hygiene can help save lives for people everywhere. Unfortunately, there are still millions of people in many parts of the world that do not even have access to proper hand hygiene facilities.

For hand washing to be more effective it must be accomplished consistently at key times, such as after using the toilet or before contact with food. Habit formation is currently a hot topic in behavior change and the water, sanitation, and hygiene sector.

Hand-washing is the No. 1 prevention against spread of infection, inside and outside the hospital setting. It is important in the home, in schools and in every workplace. It is the cornerstone of infection-control practice and education for everyone who works in health care. Every year worldwide, 8.8 million children younger than age 5 die of preventable illnesses. There are many children in the world who do not have access to safe water, or the habit or means to wash their hands properly. It is also observed that when students have access to clean water, soap, and toilet facilities, they are less likely to drop out or miss classes due to illness.

We know that hand washing with soap is the most effective and inexpensive way to prevent diarrheal diseases – reducing incidence by up to 47% – and combined with improved sanitation, this is boosted to 68%.

Many diseases are transmitted when we don't wash our hands. Bacterial, viral and fungal infections can be prevented if the hands are washed properly every day. Worm infestation, anemia, malnutrition and diarrhea are the common health hazards caused by unhygienic hands. If there is no hygiene, there is no health.

The introduction of water, sanitation and hygiene interventions in schools, including hand washing with soap, is an entry point for children to understand and then take these good hygiene practices back into their homes and communities. According to a World Health Organization (WHO) report of 2013, India loses more than 900 children everyday due to incidences of diarrhea, most of them caused by extremely poor quality of water and sanitation services. Inadequate sanitation or lack of it, is also responsible for high incidences of malnutrition and stunting in the country.

Hand washing is a small action that can have big benefits. Let us progress towards the goal of maintaining a global profile on the importance of hand hygiene in health care and to 'bring people together' in support of hand hygiene improvement globally.

It is a need of the hour to spread the word about hand washing, build sinks and tippy taps, and demonstrate the simplicity and value of clean hands. We need to emphasize the importance of hand washing as a way to prevent disease, the necessity of using soap instead of only water, how everyone's health can benefit from washing their hands, and the key times for hand washing, including before and after eating.

Champions of Human Rights and Nobel Peace Prize 2022

By: Sanjenbam Jugeshwor Singh

which advocates for political prisoners and in response to the controversial constitutional amendments that gave the president dictatorial powers and that triggered widespread demonstrations. Viasna evolved into broad-based human rights organization that documented and protested against the authorities' use of torture against political prisoners. Government authorities have repeatedly sought to silence Ales Bialiatski. He was imprisoned from 2011 to 2014. He was himself detained in 2020 following protests against the re-election of Belarus' strongman leader Alexander Lukashenko, a close ally of Putin. He remains in jail without trial. Despite tremendous personal hardship, Mr Bialiatski has not yielded an inch in his fight for human rights and democracy in Belarus. In a statement on its website, Viasna noted that this was Bialiatski's sixth nomination for the award, and that he is the fourth winner to have received the Nobel Peace Prize while in custody.

Memorial is a human rights group in Russia established by activists in the former Soviet Union in 1987, as a public history campaign to ensure that the victims of the Soviet regime would never be forgotten. During the Chechen wars, Memorial gathered and verified information on abuses and war crimes perpetrated on the civilian population by Russian and pro-Russian forces. In 2009, the head of Memorial's branch in Chechnya, Natalia Estemirova, was killed because of this work. Civil society actors in Russia have been subjected to threats, imprisonment, disappearance and murder for many years. As part of the government's harassment of Memorial, the organisation was stamped early on as a "foreign agent". The Russian Supreme Court and the authorities in December 2021 decided that Memorial was to be forcibly liquidated and the documentation center was to be closed permanently just two months prior to the invasion of Ukraine, amid a broader crackdown on human rights groups and independent journalists. The closures became effective in the following months, but the people behind Memorial refuse to be shut down. In a comment on the forced dissolution, chairman Yan Rachinsky stated, "Nobody plans to give up. When civil society must give way to autocracy and dictatorship, peace is often the next victim." Nobel Peace Prize laureate Andrei Sakharov and human rights advocate Svetlana Gannushkina were among the founders. Memorial is based on the notion that confronting past crimes is essential in preventing new ones. After the collapse of Soviet Union, Memorial grew to become the largest human rights organization in Russia. In addition to establishing a center of documentation on victims of the Stalinist era, Memorial compiled and systematized information on political oppression and human rights violations in Russia. Memorial became the most authoritative source of information on political prisoners in Russian detention facilities. The organization has also been standing at the forefront of efforts to combat militarism and promote human rights and government based on rule of law.

The Center for Civil Liberties was founded in Kyiv in 2007 for the purpose of advancing human rights and democracy in Ukraine. The center has taken a stand to strengthen Ukrainian civil society and pressure the authorities to make Ukraine a full-fledged democracy. To develop Ukraine into a state governed by rule of law, Center for Civil Liberties has actively advocated that Ukraine become affiliated with the international Criminal Court. After Russia's invasion of Ukraine in February 2022, Center for Civil Liberties has engaged in effort to identify and document Russian war crimes against the Ukrainian civilian population. In collaboration with international partners, the center is playing a pioneering role with a view to holding the guilty parties accountable for their crimes.

"Last year's prize was awarded to journalists Maria Ressa and Dmitry Muratov for their "efforts to safeguard freedom of expression" in the Philippines and Russia. Ressa is the co-founder of the investigative digital media company Rappler, which has focused on the brutal war on drugs waged by former Philippine President Rodrigo Duterte. Muratov is a broadcaster and editor-in-chief of Novaya Gazeta, an independent Russian newspaper critical of the Putin regime. In March this year, the newspaper was forced to announce that it was suspending print and digital activities and removing reporting on the invasion, after receiving multiple censorship orders from Moscow authorities. Previous winners also include the World Food Program, female education activist and Taliban attack survivor Malala Yousafzai, ex-Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, civil rights hero Martin Luther King Jr, and four former US Presidents: Barack Obama, Jimmy Carter, Theodore Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson. The coveted prize comes with an 18-karat gold medal and cash winnings of 10 million Swedish krona ($898,534), as well as international acclaim. The decision of who to award the prize is a highly secretive operation, involving a rigorous eight-month process in which the Norwegian Nobel Committee and a host of Norwegian and international advisors screen names of nominees submitted by academics and states people all over the world. A list of candidates is created by spring, with the committee making a simple majority vote at the start of October, according to the award's website. The full list of nominees is not released for another 50 years, according to the prize's website. The peace prize caps a week of Nobel awards. French author Annie Ernaux won the Nobel Prize in Literature on Thursday. Ernaux, who has written about class, sex and abortion, strongly defended women's rights to contraception and abortion in a speech at a news conference in Paris. "I will fight to my last breath so that women can choose to be a mother, or not to be. It's a fundamental right," she said.

"Nobel Committee has an interesting understanding of word 'peace' if representatives of two countries that attacked a third one receive @Nobel Prize together," said Mykhailo Podolyak, an advisor to Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelenskyy, on Twitter. "Neither Russian nor Belarusian organizations were able to organize resistance to the war," he added. Bialiatski spent 4 years in a Belarusian prison and was released in June 2014. He was detained again in 2020 following protests against strongman Alexander Lukashenko, Viktor Dabkowski / DPA via Getty Images fill. By awarding the Nobel Peace Prize for 2022 to Ales Bialiatski, Memorial and Center for Civil Liberties, the Norwegian Nobel Committee wishes to honour three outstanding champions of human rights, democracy and peaceful co-existence in the neighbor countries Belarus, Russia and Ukraine. Through their consistent efforts in favour of humanist values, anti-militarism and principles of law, this year's laureates have revitalized and honoured Alfred Nobel vision of peace and fraternity between nations-a vision most needed in the world today.

When should parents talk of careers to their children?

By: Vijay GarG

about their future careers, even basic gender stereotyping about jobs and mirror professions in high regard similar to their parents' views.

The big question arises as to what early message could be passed about the fascinating world of jobs. Well, it starts with your own career, how you as parents talk about the pros and cons of your day at work. Do you appear troubled, tired and stressed or are you portraying work-life balance, communicate with the family, speak of daily highs, things at your job you are thankful for and even connect with team members beyond work time?

These subtle and hidden messages are the nuances that are how they create pictures of careers. Is the world of work just something you must do to pay the bills? Surprisingly many teens and young adults are clueless about what their family members actually do in their workplace, their views about their jobs, or even if their parents are happy working in their current area of specialisation.

It boils down to the levels and layering of topics you cover, the pitfalls, challenges that were resolved at work and of course sharing big wins and being a good loser. When we as parents understand that social-emotional learning components such as emotional regulation, responsible decision making as well as relationship skills are the skills needed to be successful at jobs, then we build a pathway to success. As well as build a ground for future conversations.

A growth-mindset build-up is essential too. Every mistake is a learning point, so sharing how we as adults made mistakes knowingly or unknowingly as well as humanise pitfalls, learning from mistakes and that hiccups along the work time are vital for their personal growth.

A gift we can give our children the tools to make their own informed decisions.

Ways to influence children: Having a strong, parent-child relationship

Mirror socially, personally, and professionally skills and behaviour you wish your child to emulate.

Perspective acceptance and acknowledgement, even if different from yours.

Attitude, expectations, and importance given by trusted adults create a map for children's education, career, and life

The exposure and opportunities provided for the development

Do's and don'ts of conversations on careers

Support yet not be rigid about the decision-making process

Give opportunities, time, and freedom to develop skills.

Motivation and growth mindset matter.

Support children with building teamwork, empathy, and communication skills.

Resilience is integral to being responsible work attitude.

You are a child's first teacher, self-belief, and your words will have the biggest effect on your child.

Inspiration for various professions is all around us. Our local community helpers and even family holidays are ways that can lead to mutually beneficial conversations with your child about careers!

Consider what is around you in your local area that could prompt these conversations. As you walk or drive past, you could talk about all the different roles this could involve. Banks being visited, grocery stores, construction sites, and hospitals are ways to know about the different trades. For example, you and your child can discuss together how all the food and other goods got to the store, and who made that happen.

When you're on holiday, the hotels, restaurants, and amusement parks are filled with people in careers your child might not have ever thought about before. "Imagineer" and sommelier, gamers, are just a few new careers that could be brainstormed or researched as a family too.

Every decision creates a different life choice. If this decision is heavily persuaded by parental preference, the child may end up following a vocation that, deep down, they aren't interested in. Similarly, a presence of parental practical guidance and support are needed when pursuing interests to avoid poor choices.

Every child has a unique set of skills and aptitudes. Self-discovery, and the development of new skills, and talents are the way to educate children. Self-awareness rules so many decisions, including choosing subjects at school that lead to different professions.

Being proactive in this journey of discovering interests, skills and knowledge about careers is a continuum which starts early but continues until the early twenties. Parents' support and not stressing or building pressure are ways ahead.

Assam CM Himanta Biswa Sarma's security upgraded to 'Z+' category on all India basis

Agency
New Delhi, Oct 14:

The Centre has upgraded the security of Assam Chief Minister Himanta Biswa Sarma from the 'Z' category cover to the 'Z+' category on the North-Eastern region to the 'Z+' category on an India basis, sources said. The Central Reserve Police Force (CRPF), which is currently providing Sarma 'Z' category security, will now facilitate him with 'Z+' category security.

Sources said that the move comes after the security arrangement for Sarma was reviewed in the Ministry of Home Affairs (MHA) in consultation with the Central Security Agency and it has been decided to upgrade his present 'Z' category CRPF security cover in North-Eastern region to 'Z+' category CRPF security cover on all India basis.

The MHA has requested the CRPF to provide 'Z+' category security cover to Sarma on all India basis, said the sources. As per the 'Z+' category security protocol, over
