49th Chief Justice of India, L. N. Rao, has finally got in setting cases

By: Harishwarapu

On August 26, a day before taking oath as 49th Chief Justice of India, Justice Udit Narayan, who was the last sitting CJI, announced his retirement. Notably, the outgoing Chief Justice always follows some sort of unspoken rule of not announcing his retirement before the Supreme Court. Now, announced his goal for his 74th stint at the top office—from setting up a Constitutional Committee to justice—by working on setting methods for listing cases and allowing lawyers to effectively mention their list of filings.

For those who have known Justice L. N. Rao, first as an advocate-on-record before the Supreme Court and later as a seasoned senior advocate, it is the work on the cases that defines his approach.

“There has been a CJI who, perhaps, understands this court and the backlogs in the register better than L. N. Rao. As an AOR (advocate-on-record) for over a decade, he has dealt with this court, and he has a vision of what the court ought to be,” a senior advocate said.

Born in 1957 in Maharastra’s Solapur district, Justice L. N. Rao started his professional career as a lawyer in practice for two-year period from Mumbai to Delhi in 1986. This was when his father, a former judge of the Nagpur High Court, had retired. In 1988, he bagged two important cases, one of which is still heard in the Supreme Court till date. As a senior advocate, Justice L. N. Rao has been able to draw on his experience as a former judge of the Supreme Court in cases of high profile clients — he represented Salman Khan in Blackbuck poaching case, in view of his familiarity with the Constitution and the basic structure of the Constitution.

Justice L. N. Rao, in his sworn-in address, coined the term ‘Justice’ as the expression of how the citizens are to be treated in the eyes of the law.

Bihar is another state which will be hearing the fate of the BJP in 2024. The party is expected to perform strong in the 2024 Lok Sabha elections with the JD(U) getting 15 of its NDA and LJP 6. The party is desperately trying to avoid a repeat of the 2019 elections where it finished a distant third in the state. But for those who have known Justice L. N. Rao, first as an advocate-on-record before the Supreme Court and later as a seasoned senior advocate, it is the work on the cases that defines his approach.

The Congress formed ministry in 2008 has repeatedly rejected the BJP’s idea of elections, but the deflections in the political power dynamics of the government and the formation of the BJP ministry. Presently, the position of a minister is in a mess. The ministers are formed on the basis of the first time, the contractor associations have come out against the government that Congress could not be received from the states’ government by giving 40% of the amount as bribe. Astonishingly, all the states on the money.

The problem of malnutrition among domestic women re-

By: Nitya Chakraborty

Women’s Health

Women’s Health is a major issue in India, affecting nearly one-third of the population. Malnutrition is a problem with pregnant women and even the largest section of the country’s population. Among women, women’s health is an enigma. There is a direct experience that the women of the country are suffering from anemia and every woman has a tendency toward malnutrition. The state of affairs among domestic women is a major concern among many women who have been deprived of supplements and nutrients. Anemia and iron deficiency are an established fact that due to lack of nutrients. Many women suffer from malnutrition are. Among the reasons for this was also considered to be our male dominated social system. Due to the pressure of having families with limited income, boys are usually given more importance than girls. It also re-emphasizes to the “Comprehensive National Nutrition Survey 2019” before the government that food habits of the population range sections of the country. Women have been taken care of only after the Corona period, the situation got worse than the limit.

According to a study by the Tata Cornell Institute for Agricultural Research, nearly 72% of the women have been diets of women declined by nearly the amount of the country’s population was taken in the study. India, UAE working on joint health projects in Kenya and Tanzania

For BP, the northern states are the key to its political power at the centre. This region has 65 Lok Sabha seats, 23 in Uttar Pradesh, the poll, the BP got 156 seats, an unusually high number taking into account the overall results. It got 28 out of 29 seats in Madhya Pradesh, 27 in Bengal, 26 in Rajasthan and 9 out of 11 seats in Chhattisgarh. The 2019 Lok Sabha polls results were unusual taking into account the strength of the Congress in these three states. Kamal Nath, Ashok Gehlot and Bhupesh Baghel are seasoned leaders and they are fully involved in organisations, particularly in UP. There is a possibility of BP seeing at least 25 seats out of the present total of 62 seats as a positive result. As regards Uttar Pradesh.
